Proverb on Inner Wisdom: Theikahaina kaphaningli

Resource Identifier: CULT-PROV-007

English Translation: The Wise Perceive with the Mind, the Foolish with the Eyes

Category: Proverb | Subcategory: Wisdom

Village / Region: Ukhrul | Dialect: Standard Tangkhul

Contributor / Source: Traditional Oral Philosophy (Kasomwoshi 1991, Pettigrew 1918) (Documented in Pettigrew 1918, Kas

License: Traditional Oral Heritage (Permissions: community_authorized)

Seasonal Timing / Occasion: Moral and judicial instruction

Ethnographic Summary & Context:

Original saying: 'Theikahaina kaphaningli, matheikahaina mikli.' Teaches that wise judgment looks beneath outward appearance to perceive true moral character.

Indigenous Tangkhul Text / Chants / Sayings:

"Theikahaina kaphaningli, matheikahaina mikli."

English Translation & Meaning:

"The wise perceive with the discerning eye of the mind; the foolish see only with outward eyes."

Procedural Sequence / Observance Steps:

Quoted in council hearings and moral instruction to warn against superficial deception.

Ceremonial Participants & Roles:

Elders, Mentors, Councils