DIC-CIIL-002: CIIL Tangkhul Lexical Survey and Field Audio Lex

Alternative Title: Tangkhul Lexical Survey

Lexicographer / Compiler: S. Arokianathan | Year: 1982 | Publisher: Central Institute of Indian Languag
Language Pair: Tangkhul-English | Dialect: Ukhrul and Village Variants | Type: Glossary

Permission Tier: RESTRICTED | License: Copyright Central Institute of Indian Languages

---

Historical & Lexicographical Background:

Recorded in 1982 by field linguist Dr. S. Arokianathan during dialect mapping surveys across the Ukhrul district. Preserved in the CIIL Bhasha Sanchika audio and manuscript archive. Documents ethnographic material culture, pottery techniques, weaving terminology, and village-level lexical variations.

Phonological & Orthographic Framework:

Phonetic transcriptions cross-referenced with tape recordings. Includes specific material culture terminology for Longpi black pottery, traditional salt

---

Representative Lexicon & Extracted Headwords (10 items):

1. hamlei (noun): black serpentinite earthenware vessel, traditional Longpi pot ...
2. leshong (noun): crushed serpentinite rock used in wheel-less pottery (p. 43) ...
3. tarang (noun): sacred forked sacrificial post erected during feast of merit (...
4. chonkhom (noun): prestigious embroidered wrap for Tangkhul women (p. 57) -- E...
5. seichan (noun): handwoven skirt with colored geometric panels (p. 61) -- Ex: ...
6. lengvai (noun): village entrance gate, fortified ceremonial wooden portal (p....
7. khangrei (noun): competitive community war song, loud harvest chant (p. 98) -...
8. shiyan (noun): customary law, oral jurisprudence, unwritten constitution (p. ...
9. machi (noun): brine well salt, natural mineral salt cake currency (p. 126) <A...
10. ngaso (verb): to accompany, to join together, to walk as companions (p. 82) -...