Section 4A: Traditional Folktale -- Luklam Phila-vawui Tui

English Title: The Story of the Chieftess of Luklam

Genre: traditional_folktale | Provenance: Luklam Village Oral Lore

---

Original Tangkhul Literary Text:

A-chila kha Luklam phila-vashi chi-na a-shi-tui lu-ri-bam. Chi-wui eina mi-na a-li ngashit-laga shim-khun-li pam-ngasak-sai. Phila-va chi-na awun sa-bam-lala, a-wui ngashao-ngachei-wui vang mi-bingna a-li horkahai.

English Literary Translation & Summary:

An ancient Tangkhul tale from Luklam village describing the reign of a proud female chief (Phila-va). When she became overly haughty, the villagers held counsel and left the village, leaving her isolated with her pride.

Moral & Didactic Wisdom:

English: Haughtiness and arrogance alienate true friends.

Preserved in Tangkhul Language Library Digital Archive

Section 4B: Traditional Folk Song -- Lu Khayei: Haorao Phanit Lu

English Title: Traditional Tangkhul Folk Song: Haorao Festival Song

Genre: folk_song | Theme: Love & Seasonal Festivity

Traditional Tangkhul Lyric Stanzas:

Kaphung ngalemli leikashi won,
Ngashun ngaya i nangli ngacham.
I-wui ningli kashak leikashi,
Zimik-sho eina zingkum shurda.

English Poetic Translation & Overview:

A traditional festive folk lyric singing of love blooming amidst the green hills, longing through day and night from sunrise to every turning year.

Cultural & Seasonal Context:

Sung during Haorao harvest celebrations expressing youthful romantic longing amidst the green hills, honoring steadfast fidelity through changing seasons.

Preserved in Tangkhul Language Library Digital Archive