[LIT-STRY-001] Maranwon

Translation: The Blossom of Fate

Work Type: SHORT_STORY | Creator: R. Shaiza | Year: 2000
Village: Ukhrul | Dialect: Standard Tangkhul | Book ID: BK-TLS-007
Publisher / Source: Tangkhul Literature Society, Manipur
Clearance: Educational Curriculum | Permission: permitted | Status: verified

---

Themes: Mountain education and rural community service as ethical callings, Tension between rural homeland roots and urban outward migration, Female
Structure & Meter: Realistic short story with chronological narrative arc, psychological

---

Critical Overview: Authored by R. Shaiza and anthologized in Class IX Tangkhul Tuitam Kachiko (2000), this story has sparked decades of classroom

---

Indigenous Tangkhul Literary Text / Stanzas:

Maranwonna village school-li teaching sakda rural education-wui vang ded
Town-li migration opportunity khalei-eili, ancestral village-li youth tr
Story-na traditional communal values kala modern urban aspirations-wui c

---

English Translation & Literary Rendering:

Maranwon dedicated her life to teaching in her native village school, gu
Though alluring opportunities urged her to migrate to the distant city,
The narrative realistically portrays the poignant choice between modern

---

Key Poetic & Literary Vocabulary Terms:

* Maranwon : Literary name signifying 'the blossom of destiny'
* Lairik-Kakaso : The sacred calling of educational instruction
* Ramvum : Ancestral village homeland and communal territory