[LIT-TRNS-001] Kakashak Naomayawui Khararchan: Parable of the Prodigal

Translation: The Prodigal Son Parable Specimen in Tangkhul

Work Type: TRANSLATION | Creator: Rev. William Pettigrew | Year: 1903
Village: Ukhrul | Dialect: Ukhrul | Book ID: BK-ARCH-001
Publisher / Source: Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta
Clearance: Public Domain | Permission: public_domain | Status: verified

---

Themes: The pioneer specimen of formal Tangkhul printed narrative prose,
Syntactic adaptation of classical biblical parables into indigenous Ukhrul
Structure & Meter: Continuous narrative prose with interlinear syntactic markers and comp

---

Critical Overview: Published in Grierson’s LSI (Vol. III, Part III, Calcutta), this 1903 text is celebrated by linguists as the birth

---

Indigenous Tangkhul Literary Text / Stanzas:

1903 kum Linguistic Survey of India-li Rev. William Pettigrew-wui Parabl
’Minao khani kakhaleiwui ngachonli, inawungana avashangli, "Ava, iwui sh
Hina printed historical literature-li Tangkhul continuous narrative pros

---

English Translation & Literary Rendering:

In 1903, Rev. William Pettigrew’s Tangkhul translation of the Parable of ’A certain man had two sons; and the younger of them said to his father,
This historic specimen provided comparative linguists with the earliest

---

Key Poetic & Literary Vocabulary Terms:

* Parable-Khararchan : Allegorical teaching story / moral parable
* Inawunga : The younger brother / younger son
* Avashang : Respected father and household patriarch